Friday, Nov. 8

Hagerty Center at Northwestern Michigan College
715 E Front St.
Traverse City, Michigan

Brought to you by:

Overview

The 2019 BINNM symposium will bring together a panel of experts to discuss the treatment and management of life-changing traumatic brain injuries for adults and children. Key topics include the latest research and practice recommendations for management of TBI and identification of ways to manage related pain issues.

Target Audience

Case Managers • Nurses • Nurse Practitioners • Occupational Therapists • Physical Therapists • Physicians • Psychologists • Rehab Program Administrators • Social Workers • Speech-Language Pathologists • Students • Therapeutic Recreation Specialists

Outcomes

Participants will be able to discuss pain issues associated with TBI, as well as management strategies to maximize patient outcomes. They will be able to describe the main causes and symptoms of stroke in infants and children, the long-term outcomes after pediatric stroke and methods of intervention and treatment. Attendees will be able to describe the challenges and issues faced by veterans with TBI and strategies needed for working with this patient population. They will be able to discuss the challenges of aging with brain injury and management strategies to address these issues.
